RECESSIONAL

MARK MA
THE CEO AND FOUNDER OF BIOTECH INNOVATIONS

Mark Ma is the CEO and founder of Biotech Innovations, one of the very few fully integrated agricultural biological manufacturing companies in the United States. His journey began as a student, developing biological products out of his dorm room in O C Hall. What started as a small idea soon grew into a mission to provide sustainable solutions for American agriculture.

After graduating in 2004, Mark rented his first office near 635 and Forest Lane in Dallas and invested everything into building the company. By the third month, he faced a challenge familiar to many entrepreneurs: not enough money to pay the next month's rent. A newly signed dealer placed his first order that provided just enough support to keep the business alive. That moment shaped Mark's belief that relationships, trust and resilience are the foundation of long-term success.

Two decades later, Biotech Innovations has grown into a national leader in agricultural biologicals. Its technologies are used on more than 2 million acres of farmland across the United States every year, helping growers improve plant health, reduce input costs and restore soil function. The company has established partnerships with Fortune 100 companies and collaborates with leading research institutions.

Under Mark's leadership, Biotech Innovations is one of only three U.S. manufacturers in the capable of developing, producing and distributing biological inputs at full scale. The company is known for its investments in soil microbiome research, proprietary biological technologies and scientific breakthroughs. Among its notable discoveries is the first known fungus with natural fungicidal activity, opening a new frontier in biological crop protection.

Mark has served on the Texas Wesleyan University Board of Trustees for more than 10 years, reflects his commitment to education and mentorship. He often shares his experiences with students and young entrepreneurs navigating their early steps in business and leadership.

From a dorm room startup to a nationally recognized manufacturer, Mark's story underscores persistence, integrity and long-term commitment. His work continues to inspire young people to pursue their ideas boldly, stay grounded in integrity, keep influencing the future of sustainable agriculture and inspiring innovators to pursue ideas with resilience and purpose.

ACADEMIC REGALIA AND SYMBOLS

American academic regalia originated at European medieval universities, particularly Oxford University, about seven centuries ago. At that time, the teachers were clergymen, the students were studying to become clerics, and the cassock was their usual costume. The tradition has continued through the ages at colleges and universities in the wearing of the academic gown, hood and cap.

The cap, or mortarboard, is the same for all degrees with the exception of the tassel, which denotes the academic area of the degree. The tassel is worn on the right side of the cap until the bachelor's degree is conferred, at which time it is switched to the left side.

The gown is usually black. Some institutions have designated other colors to be worn by their doctoral graduates. The doctor's gown is faced with velvet and has three velvet bands on each sleeve. These distinguishing marks may be either black or in the appropriate color of the academic degree earned. The master's gown has no ornamentation, is always black and is distinguished by the shape and length of the sleeves. The sleeves are long and shaped with a square-cut corner at the back and an arc-cut from the front. The gown for the baccalaureate graduate has long pointed sleeves.

The most colorful and significant item of the academic regalia is the hood. The length indicates the degree; the color of the border denotes the academic area of the degree; the colors of the hood lining identify the college or university, which granted the degree. The doctor's hood is four feet long with a five-inch border. The master's hood is three and one-half feet long with a three-inch border and a long, large pocket at the bottom. The bachelor's hood is three-feet long with a two-inch border.

A TEXAS-SIZED HISTORY

Originally called Polytechnic College — which literally means "many arts and sciences" — the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, founded Texas Wesleyan University in 1890. The school held its first classes in September 1891, with 111 students.

In 1902, H.A. Boaz assumed the presidency and led the university's first period of substantive growth. During his tenure, new residence halls, a fine arts conservatory, a science hall and a gym were built. Enrollment increased each year at the new university, which was located a few miles from the growing city of Fort Worth.

When Dallas was selected by the church leaders as the site for Southern Methodist University, the Polytechnic campus was designated the Woman's College for Southern Methodism, eventually becoming Texas Woman's College in 1914.

During the 1920s, the tradition of robing, which commemorates the relationship between faculty and students through a ceremonial vesting of cap and gown, became a university tradition. The tradition remains to this day. And, it is an example of Texas Wesleyan's dedication to a small, personal educational atmosphere.

The college was renamed Texas Wesleyan College in 1935, and has remained a co-educational liberal arts institution with an increasingly

The academic colors most frequently associated with the Texas Wesleyan University academic community are:

The green and blue tassels identify members of the Alpha Chi National Honor Society. These graduates are at or near the top two percent of their class.

The gold cord symbolizes membership in an honor society. The purple and teal tassels identify members of Kappa Delta Pi, an international honor society in education.

The mace is a common symbol of the authority and power of a corporate body. Its use as such originated in medieval times in legislative bodies and university faculties. It is carried by the presiding officer of the Faculty Assembly.

The presidential medallion is a symbol of the Office of the President of a chartered institution. It bears the seal of the college and is placed around the neck of the president at investiture to represent the yoke of responsibility for the welfare of the institution.

comprehensive academic and student life program. Law Sone became the President of Texas Wesleyan in 1935, which kicked off a 33-year period of growth and expansion.

Under Sone, athletics thrived, with dominant teams in golf and basketball; new facilities were built on campus, including a new library and residence halls; and new academic programs in business and education became points of pride for the university.

In addition to strong undergraduate programs, the university added graduate programs in education in the 1970s and in nurse anesthesia in the 1980s. Recognizing the growth in programs, Trustees changed the name of the institution to Texas Wesleyan University, effective in January 1989. The Graduate Programs of Nurse Anesthesia has grown into the largest in the nation, delivering courses to students throughout the United States.

President Dr. Emily Messer became the 21st president of Texas Wesleyan in July 2023. She has an extensive background in higher education, from helping colleges break historic enrollment numbers and securing funding for new programming and expansions of colleges, to putting a focus on the importance of student life. She has goals to continue making the university a higher education leader in the community.

LITANY - "PREPARING FOR THE LIGHT"

Leader: O, God, we who have waited so long in the darkness seek the light of your coming.

People: Send the light of your advent to shatter our darkness and to scatter the shadows that surround us.

Leader: When we are slow to watch for your coming, when we are slow to wait for your wisdom, when we are slow to learn the wonders you would teach us ...

People: Send the light of your advent to make us watchful and wise.

Leader: Enlighten those who teach, that teaching give way to knowledge, and knowledge bring forth truth.

People: Send the light of your advent to make us truthful and strong.

Leader: Enlighten those who learn, that learning give way to insight and insight give birth to joy and wonder.

People: Send the light of your advent to make us joyful and glad.

Leader: Grant each of us the discipline of the teacher and the imagination of the student, that we may walk in ways renewed by the spirit of learning.

People: Send the light of your advent to make us creative and hopeful.

Leader: May our learning move us to caring; our caring move us to action; our action move us to be strong witnesses to your presence in our world.

People: Send the light of your advent to make us caring and brave.

All: And now, O God, we wait with still hearts and open minds for love, joy and peace to be born among us again. Come to us, Emmanuel!
